DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-8, 12-19, 21, 23-26, 30 and 31 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Fuson et al (US 3,957,082).

Fuson teaches a rotatable stopcock valve is first (37) and second (39) ports, a first passageway (21) and second passageway (41) including a relief port (19); a valve member (11) defining a part of the first passageway (55) with a first opening (narrow end) and second opening (wide end, Fig 8). The valve further comprises a handle (51), a releasable lock (57) and a button (71). The first port is normally closed by a luer cap (80). The second (distal) end of the housing includes a third port (21) that connects to tubing (43). The first passageway is branched (branches 37, 39, 41).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fuson as applied to claims above, and further in view of Atkinson et al (US 5,261,459).

5. Fuson does not teach a slit valve for closing the first port, only a luer cap. Atkinson teaches a well known type of slit valves, the duckbill valve. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use a duckbill valve instead of a luer cap as an alternate means of sealing the first port to prevent contaminating the valve.

6. Claims 11, 20, and 27-29 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fuson as applied to claims above, and further in view of Jinotti (US 5,088,486).

7. Fuson does not teach a dual lumen nasogastric tube or a connector for attaching a nasogastric tube to his valve. Jinotti teaches a rotatable valve (20) for connection to a dual lumen (22) nasogastric tube (Fig 5). The nasogastric tube connects via adapters (160 and 150) with strain relief (310).

Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments filed 7 November 2008 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that passageway 41 is not a relief port. There is no definition of "relief port" and any hollow passageway is capable of acting as a relief port for the venting of fluids or gases. The rejection is maintained.

Conclusion

1. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
